

Delivering Value Across the Healthcare Ecosystem

Distributors create between $33 and $53 billion in healthcare cost savings each year.

Distributors' core services enable patient access to necessary medications and treatments by supporting pharmaceutical manufacturers, providers and pharmacies. These services amplify value in the healthcare ecosystem by increasing operational efficiency, providing inventory management and bearing financial risk.

Administrative

Pick, pack and ship expenses

Delivery

Sales and marketing

Information technology

Warehouse operations

Buying

Contracts and chargeback reconciliation

Carrying costs

Customer costs

Through partnerships across the supply chain, distributors provide safe, quick and low-cost access to more than 4 billion prescription medicines for patients each year.

180M patients regularly take a prescription medicines.

22,000+ independent pharmacies are supported by distributor services.

1,300 manufacturers are served by distributors.

11.3M prescription units are purchased from distributors each business day.

180,000 pharmacies, hospitals, providers and other healthcare facilities are supplied by distributors.

83% of supply chain customers receive delivery five times per week or more.

The Role of Distributors in the US Health Care Industry is available as a complimentary download through the HDA website.

To learn more about the safety, reliability, efficiency and pharmacy support distributors provide to the healthcare sector, communities across the country and American patients, visit: www.HealthDelivered.org | @HDACconnect